KENTUCKY SITUATION AGAIN THREATENING.

Senate Resolution to Curb Taylor's War Move May Provoke Civil Strife.

Would Be Met by Force.

Frankfort, Ky., March 5.-Recent developments indicate that the situation in the State has again assumed a serious phase Senator Triplett presented a resolution today, which may lend to civil war if it is carried and enforced.

The resolution, after reciting the removal by the Republicans of all the arms and munitions of the State Guard from Frankfort to the mountain refuge of London calls for the appointment of a committee to demand their return, and, if refused, to appropriate $250,000 for the purpose of buying new war marerial. It also empowers General John B. Castleman, the Adjutant Genpal, under Governor Beckham, to call for blunteers and go to London and other countain counties and obtain possession of he war material and return it to the ar-menal at Frankfort. London and the neighboring territory in the mountains is filled with Republican mountaineers.

It is generally believed that Taylor's pur-pose in removing the war munitions fore-shadows the transfer of the State officers, with records of the State, in anticipation of an unfavorable decision by the courts of an unfavorable decision by the courts where the cases are pending.

Then, acting under the orders of the court, should the Democratic officers attempt to gain possession of the records they would be met with a force which recognizes Taylor, and only by a superior force of arms could possession be obtained. Such a move would give opportunity for Federal intervention. The Legislature will adjourn next week. Then either Governor Beckham or Taylor, or perhaps both, could appeal for Federal troops, alleging a state of rebedion, and the Fresident might comply with the request, though it is a question which call he would recognize.

It is generally believed, also, that Taylor contemplates calling a special session of the Legislature at London as soon as the regular session adjourns.

contemplates calling a special session of the Legislature at London as soon as the regular session adjourns.

W. 8. Taylor left the Executive Building to-day, being called to Morgantown, Butler County, by the death of his brother, Alonzo Taylor.

There was not a quorum of Democrats present at the session of the House, and no business was transacted, other than the adoption of a resolution providing for afternoon sessions hereafter in order to get rid of the mass of legislation, which was blocked when the Legislature was racing with Taylor's militis. The absence of a quorum was due to the fact that most of the members had sone home to spend Sunda privilege they have had to forego since the murder of Governor Guebel.

In the Senate, Mr. Tipiett's joint resolution, bearing on the removal of all the military equipment and calling for its return, was the most important business.

Mr. Bell introduced a bill making it a felony for any person or persons to exercise the power or perform the duty or to forcibly hold possession of the State buildings or records after the regular contest tribunal shall have decided him or them not to have been legally elected. The bill has an emergency clause, and will go into effect immediately after its passage.

The case of Harian Whittaker, one of the suspects held for the Goebel assassination, has been abundoned by his attorney, James A. Violette, Whittaker's hearing is set for to-morrow, but may be postponed. Mr. Violette says he withdrew from the case because no fee was forthcoming for his services.

The case of Lee Jones, the Whitley County suspect, will also be called to-morrow.

The smallpox scattered over the State by Taylor's soldiers has spread to Henry County, where two members of the Pleasureville company have developed the disease. The State Board of Health has been notified and the usual precautions taken. Smallpox in five counties has now been traced directly to the mountain soldiers quartered in the Executive building during the month of February.

The shipment of war munitions to London was continued to-day. A carload of small arms and other supplies was sent. The only war munitions now here are the Gatleg guns and the arms and ammunition sed by the soldiers in command of the building.

Adjutant teneral Coiller of the Republican administration says he has no definite knowledge of any shipments made to London, and added that if any were made the arms were for the purpose of providing equipment for the mountain companies.

"It was an outrageous tragedy, and the gullty man should be summarily dealt with. The idea advanced by the Democrats that the assassination was the result of a plot by Republicans is absurd. Likewise is the shot was fired by Jack Chinn. I have been at work in the interest of our party, and I find that Mrs. Saffel, in part, is mistaken in her statement of what she saw. She claims that Goebel was shot from behind. That is right, but her claim that Colonel Chinn fired the shot is wrong. She says Chinn fired the shot is wrong. She says Chinn fired the shot is wrong. She says Chinn had a pistol in his hand. He did He says so nimself. By Mrs. Bonta, the wife of a shopkeeper living on Broadway, we will be able to prove that the shot was not fired from the office of the Secretary of State, but by one of three men who passed Chinn and Goebel at the fountain.

Lexington, Ky., March 5.—Colonel Jack Chlun came here from Harrodsburg to-day and was the center of attraction owing to recent statements intimating that he killed Senator Goebel. Although somewhat averse to discussing the tragedy, he was not backward in expressing himself as to the character of the stories.

He says: "They would give a million dollars to-day if they could rid themselves of the assassination of Goebel. Three of the best detectives in this country told me two weeks ago that the assassination was the result of the most gigantic plot this country has ever known. The statement that one of the three men whom we met stepped in from behind and fred the shot is bosh. Another bird, pitted by Levy, got a broken leg early in the fight, and bets were made at 10 to 1 that he would cuit. He was game to the death, however, and fought with the broken leg for thirty minutes, and finally won by a luck stab. It was a chance shot, but it was well directed, and won.

How the Japanese Look at It.

From the internation i Magazine.

Perhaps no other country than Japan has received so much unstituted praise in the periodical literature of the last two decades. But this is not enough to satisfy a native of Japan. He knows that the powerful and respected mailous of the world are often criticised, and even hitterly attacked, for certain shortcomings. Nothing has less influence upon a sober and thoughtful Japanese than landstory descriptions of the country and the people. He suspects that this sort of culogy is not thoroughly sincere it is like the applause that is given to a door standing on his hind legs—pothing remarkable for him. What the Japanese prizes more than anything else is, in essence what all people ask for, namely, recognition based on mutual respect or equality. Falling to receive this, he prefers the severest criticism, if not made in a carping spirit. In fact, a Japanese resents the gusling attitude toward the art, the scenery or the refined manners of his country, because he is sware that these are really not the objects of national worship in Occidental countries. The fundamental desires for equality stir him more than any other ideal virtue or power.
